Methods: Bench and in-vivo evaluations were performed. For the bench visualization bifurcated silicone mock vessel was used. The POKI technique was simulated using a 3.5 mm POT balloon. For the in-vivo evaluation patients with angiographic bifurcation lesions in a native coronary artery with diameter  $\geq 2.5$  mm and  $\leq 4.5$  mm, SB diameter  $\geq 2.0$  mm, and percentage diameter stenosis (%DS) more than 50% in the main vessel (MV) were included. Provisional stenting was the default strategy.

Background: Percutaneous coronary interventions (PCI) of bifurcation lesions poses a technical challenge with a high complication rate. Kissing balloon inflation (KBI) and proximal optimization technique (POT) are used to correct bifurcation carina after stenting. However, both may still lead to incomplete strut apposition to the side branch (SB) lateral wall. Proposed herein, is a new stent-optimization technique following bifurcation stenting consisting of a combination of POT and KBI called proximal optimization with kissing balloon inflation (POKI).

People expect loads of fun and entertainment in a Rohit Shetty movie, which, sadly, was missing in Cirkus.

The jokes were flat and the comedy of errors just didn't work.

Even the performances of the lead actors, mainly Ranveer Singh, lacked enthusiasm.
