Today, jujutsu is practiced in both traditional self-defense oriented and modern sports forms.

Derived sport forms include the Olympic sport and martial art of judo, which was developed by Kanō Jigorō in the late 19th century from several traditional styles of jujutsu, and sambo and Brazilian jiu-jitsu, which were derived from earlier (pre World War II) versions of Kodokan judo that had more emphasis on ground fighting (which also caused the creation of kosen judo).

As jujutsu is a collective term, some schools or ryu adopted the principle of ju more than others.

Around the year 1600 there were over 2000 jujutsu ko-ryō styles, most with at least some common descent, characteristics, and shared techniques.

Aikido is a modern martial art developed primarily during the late 1920s through the 1930s by Morihei Ueshiba from the system of Daitō ryō Aiki-jūjutsu.
